BERNARDJAN

A Time Of

As my feet, two among many, timidly crept up the front stairs and through the doors of Saint Bernard's High School for the first time, I never realized, like I do now, that I would never be the same. Now I am aware that I will carry the presence of the spirit here at Saint Bernard's with me for the rest of my life. Later, when I look back, my memories will keep me close to everyone I met here. Like everyone during life, I will wear many different kinds of shoes. I am a different person now; I entered alone and I will leave with a heart full of friends whom I have become a part of and who have become a part of me. Through competition in sports at Saint Bernard's I learned the dedication that made me an athlete. With the help of my teachers I will leave with knowledge I will need for the rest of my life and a mind, that most of all, was taught to expand. Our feet bigger, our destination closer, these four years have been a time of change. Together we leave; never again will we be

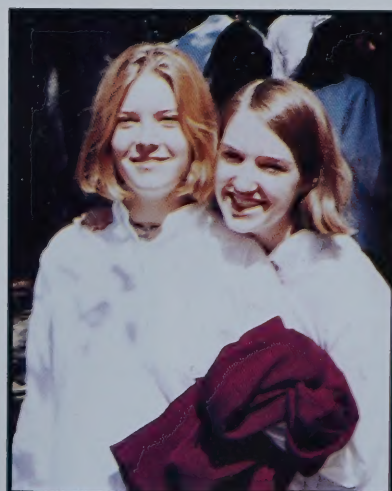

Change

He became our leader.

We became athletes.

We became friends.

A Time of Gratitude

Albert Schweitzer once said, "The purpose of human life is to serve and show compassion toward the will of others." Our advisors of the Class of 1996 have done just that. Señora Carulli and Mr. Haverty have gone above and beyond what people normally have the ability to do. Whether it has been spending endless hours in meetings, or just reaching out to one of our classmates in time of need, these teachers have shown dedication and love for St. B's and the students here.

They haven't been alone, however. A thank you also needs to be extended to our former advisors, Mr. Pierce, Mr. Hampsch, and Mr. Duynstee. No matter who was involved, all our advisors have demonstrated care and dedication to their positions, and their students.

Although we may not have shown it through the past four years, we greatly appreciated and enjoyed the help of our advisors.

We wish you the best of luck, and we extend our deep gratitude for all that you've done for us.

-Kristie Hotaling

Taking her job in stride Señora corrects papers during a busy day.

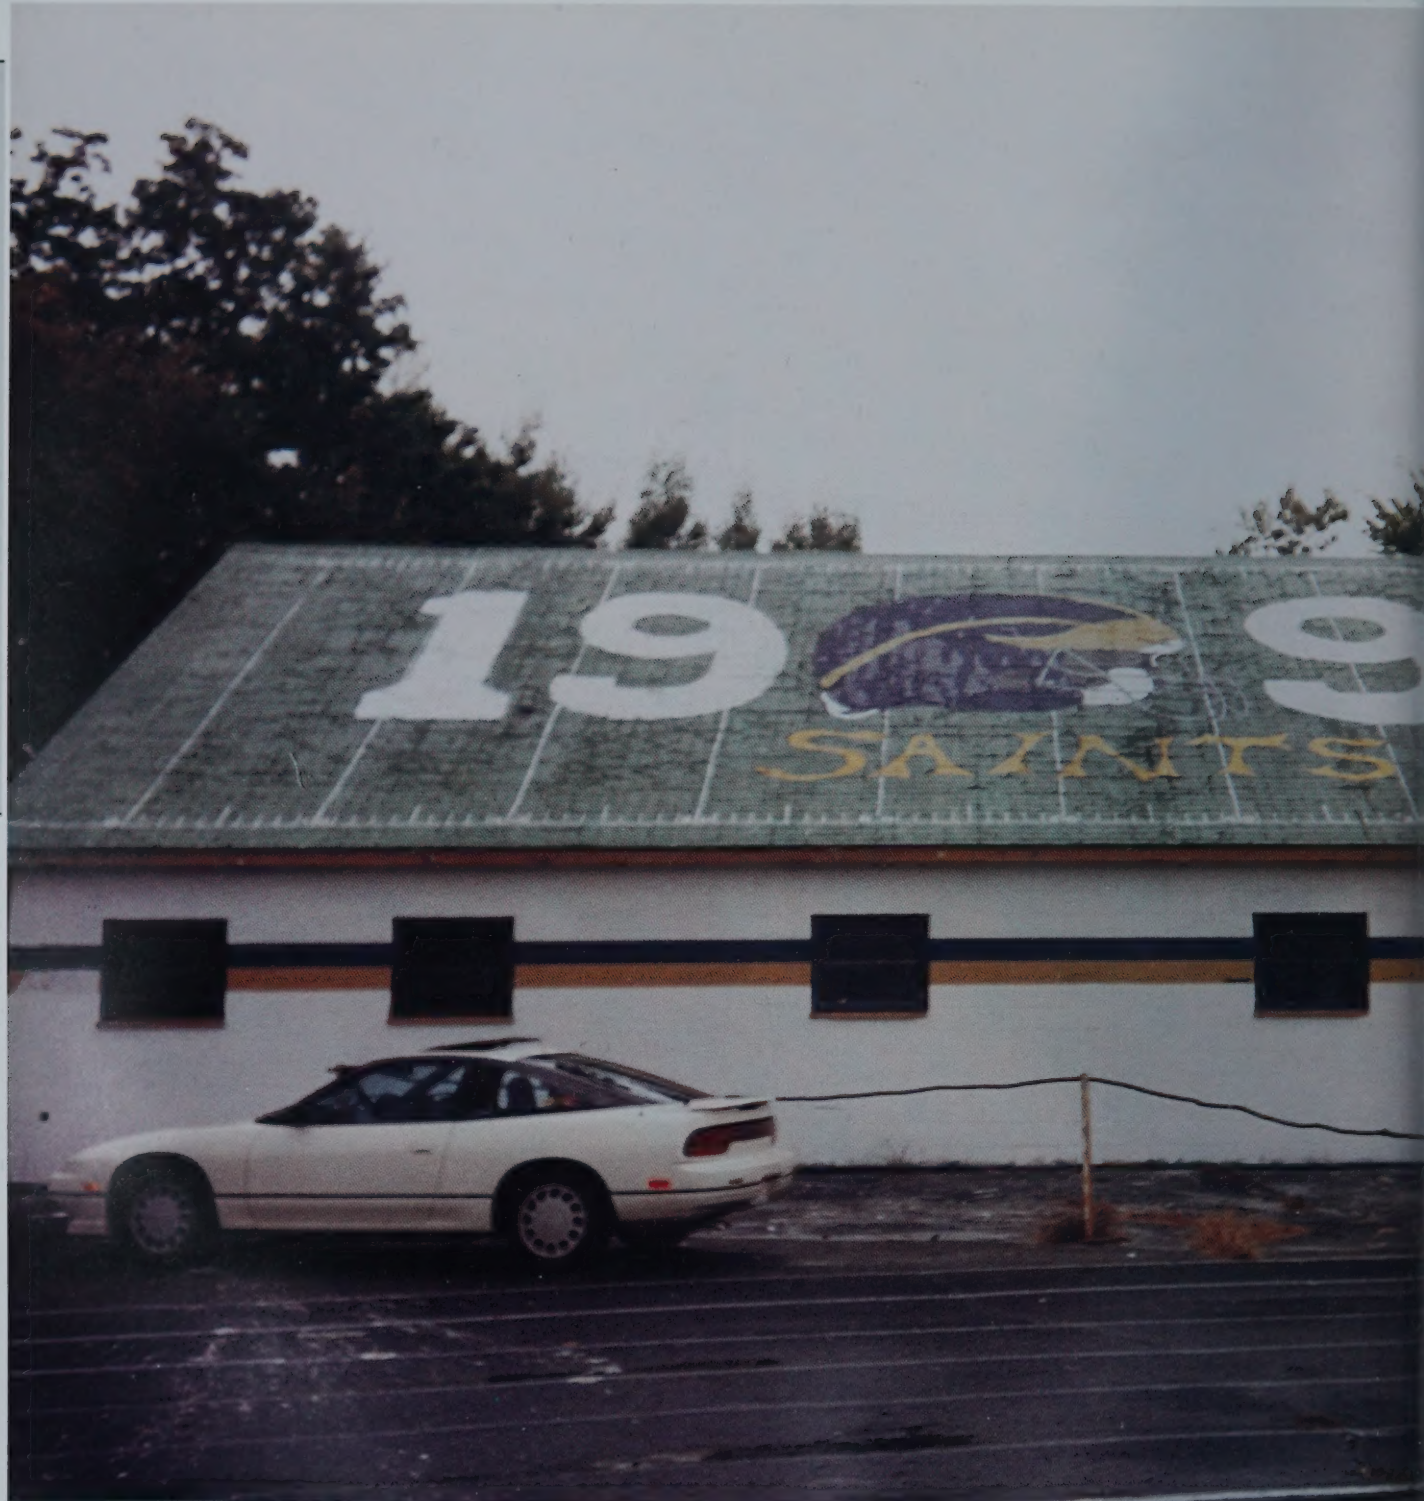

What a happy guy! Mr. Haverty is his usual friendly self.

Leading the way Mr. Hampsch, Señora Carulli, Mr. Duynstee, and Mr. Haverty, lead the procession into the auditorium for the Class of 1996's Junior Singing Ceremony.

Getting organized for a busy day ahead Mr. Haverty straightens out his desk before another hectic day of classes.

Senior Spirit! The roof of the club house proclaims the pride of the Class of 1996. As Brian Evans, one of the artists, says, "[It] is the best looking roof of all."

CLASS of 1996

This is a lifetime of good-byes. As we continue with life, we will say good-bye to cherished people, things and ideas. Eventually we will say good-bye to life itself with death. Learn to say good-bye.

-How to Survive the Loss of a Love

SENIORS

Peace, Unity, and Togetherness

Kristie Hotaling shares a positive outlook with the freshmen on Orientation Day.

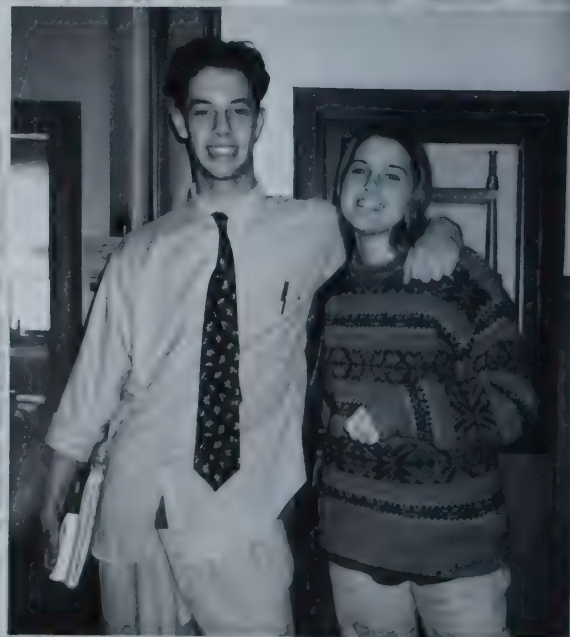

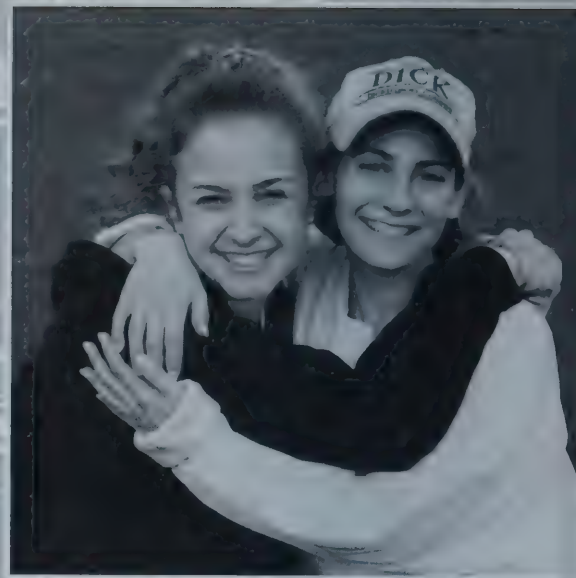

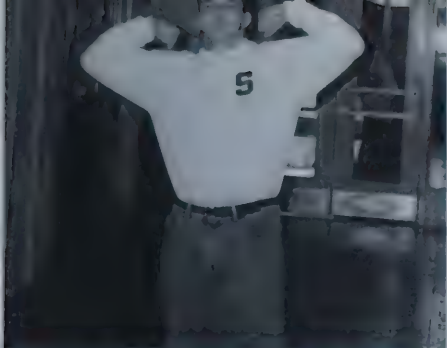

A friend is one soul and two bodies.

A Year of Laughs

A Change of Style

The Junior Prom was an unforgettable evening for the Class of '96. Changed in style from the in classic, everyday uniforms to

"We laughed the entire night. It marked the end of a good year and the beginning of a great one." --Kristie Hotaling & Josh Bilotta elegant evening gowns and tuxedos, prom goers decorated the dance floor. The night of April 28, 1995, was filled with laughs and memories as the junior class enjoyed a wonderful evening of dinner and dancing. King and queen, Joshua Bilotta and Kristie Hotaling, were accompanied by their court for a dance to start off the evening of fun and excitement. The entire class was united as memories of their junior year were the topics of conversation. As the evening came to a close, the Class of '96 realized that the night would always be a time to remember.

Hail to the King and Queen! Josh and Kristie enjoy their night of royalty.

Looking good! Marissa Erickson and Beth Vincent Show off their new styles

"I love you, man..." '96 guys share some bonding time at the Junior Prom.

Lasting moment Christen Barnicle and Jon Simms give each other a hug.

A time to remember Kate Ladeau and Chris Refrigeri get close before they begin their dance for the court.

's Suzifer Pekintyre! Best friends Suzanne McIntyre and Jenn Pekkinnen e together again hat a cute couple! (above) Erin Burns and Ollie Lazure make the most of terrific evening

A Spirited Change

For one week in September, the school became one big ol' blur of Blue and Gold pride. The reason that St. Bernard's was transformed to this alternate state of being was Spirit Week 1995. The week not only focused on school spirit, but also promoted individual class unity.

Included in this week of fun were hallway decorations. Themes for decorations ran from the galactic with the seniors' tribute to Star Wars, to the creepy with the freshmen's spook-filled graveyard. The highlights, however, were freshman/senior activities which included everything from freshmen singing at lunch to the baking of home-made treats made for the Class of 1996.

On September 21, 1995, freshmen and seniors gathered at the Activity Center for a night of fun and craziness. Freshmen dressed as football players, Adam and Eve, the Dunkin' Donuts man, a nun, a wizard, and the list goes on and on... Through all that, the Class of 1999 endured, and apparently enjoyed their welcome.

-Erin O'Connor

Hungry? I thought so! Brian Reynolds covers Rebecca Keogh's face with whipped cream while playing "hangman" senior style.

Watch out! (above) Kristie Hotaling coaches Chris Lackey as he jumps over an imaginary bucket on the obstacle course

What's that? You're due in two months? A pregnant Doug Jordan takes a minute to bond with Suzanne McIntyre and Cassandra Barton.

Freshman or freshwoman? (above center) Cara Champa puts the finishing touches on Aaron Garipey's make-up.

Peace, man! Kate Ladeau and Melissa Courtemanche show off their too cool polyester suits.

Is that a weave? Josh Bilotta comments on Eric Beaudoin's new hairstyle.

Dreamy, man Jess Cote and Maura Quinn look like they just got back from Woodstock.

he Force be with you! Scott Paul seems to have come across a new companion in the Star Wars hallway.

Peace in the Middle East Kristin Glanton shows off her army jacket to Kris Stone.

Dressed for the occasion Erin O'Connor demonstrates her school spirit on 50's and 60's day.

Changing Gears

Hey, baby! Alexander Riendeau looks like he's waiting for a passenger.

Buckle up! Beth Vincent checks to make sure Kris Stone is wearing his seatbelt.

Who, me? (center) Meg McRae and Amelia Kane look over their shoulders at Cogshall Park during the senior picture photography shoot.

"Wait for me!" Melissa Courtemanche yells her ride.

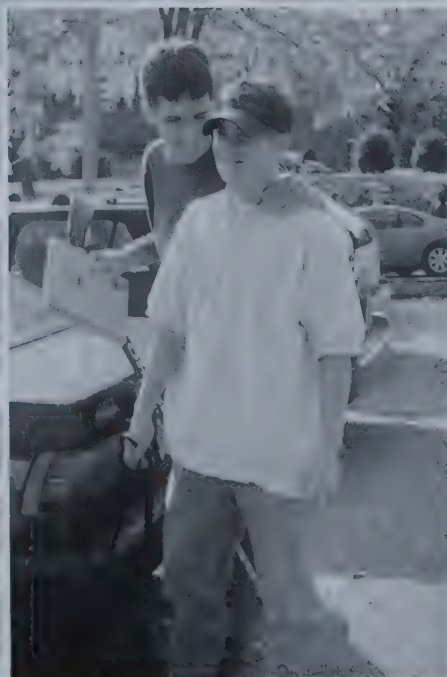

Shifting into second gear (left) Sarah Terho cruises out of the parking lot in her Geo Tracker.

What's the plan, girls? Tracy Bizzotto, Kate Ladeau, Kristie Hotaling, Simmon Dzubinski, and Jaime Gleason meet in the parking lot after school.

Unful... Amy Butler tries to sneak away while Coggshall park.

Three Musketeers! (above) Mike O'Connell, Bilotta, and Cara Champa hang out in the parking lot at 2:00.

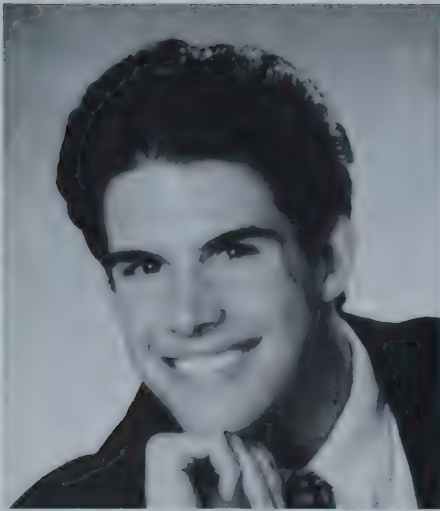

Whisper, whisper Brian Record tells Justin Krook a secret as they head toward their cars.

"Tah Dah!" Jenn Pekkinen and Vicki Melin strike a pose in the parking lot.

Happy to be alive (above) Alicia Godin is glad to be spending time at Coggshall Park.

Nicholas Ernest Adams

"Hold it fellas. That don't move me. Let's get real, real gone for a change."

-Elvis Presley

Thanks to everyone! Mom and Dad and Dude and Dan and all those crazy people who gave me Elvis stuff. To all my friends who were there to keep me busy and maintain that smile on my face - NICE. Finally to Karen, who made my high school years wonderfully fun and for keeping me mentally sane when I was slowly going crazy

Time-Honored Tradition

Throughout this year the seniors have had many "lasts": their last football or basketball game, their last Homecoming, and even their last detention. but on November 17, 1995, the senior girls had a "first," the Father/Daughter Dance. At first, getting dressed up and going out with their dads wasn't on the top of their lists for "things to do," but by the time the evening drew to a close, the women of the Class of 1996 were sad to see it end. From dancing to "Daddy's Little Girl," to the waltz, to the twist, the laughs and smiles showed that the dads weren't the only ones having fun.

Childhood memories were reflected that night with many fathers telling "remember when's" to their daughters. Now, many of the girls are saying the same thing to each other when they talk about that night. The tradition of the Father/Daughter Dance brings a wonderful first to a year full of lasts. Thank you, dads!

-Jess Cote

"May I have this dance?" Julie Schonbeck and her dad share a waltz.

Sharing a moment Captain Ptak reflects on Katie's childhood, and looks ahead to her future.

Well dressed up Carrie Mercier and Betsy Brooke discuss how lovely everyone looks.

"Let us pray." Jess Cote and her dad hold hands during the blessing beginning the evening.

Like father like daughter (far left) Now we know where Stephanie Smith gets her good looks.

Whose turn is it? Looks like it was Stacey's turn to dance with Mr. Burns.

"Daddies' little girls" The senior girls dance with their fathers to "Daddy's Little Girl."

Making a mess and loving it! Despite the presence of a six-foot inflatable alligator, the junior hallway never quite became the jungle students had envisioned. Nevertheless, with the paint, streamers, and strings of leaves, the class had a great time decorating the hall for Spirit Week.

"Do all the good you can,
By all the means you can,
In all the ways you can,
In all the places you can
At all the times you can,
To all the people you can,
As long as ever you can."

UNDERCLASSMEN

On his way out Spencer Cormier, with his book-laden bag strapped to his back, prepares to make his way home on a snow-filled December afternoon.

Flashcards in hand Tim Pelletier marvels as Meghan Hughes studies her vocabulary words while she skillfully navigates down the hall to her next class.

Little Fish in a Big Pond

Good morning, sunshine! Bright-eyed and cheery-faced, Jason Holt, Erin Courtney, and Jessica Holt are ready to face a new day.

My freshman class has been the best group of people I have ever been with. They are friendly, considerate, and kind. Our class officers, John Lombard, Mary George, Alyne Butland, Diana Lafarier, Mary Boucher, and Annemarie Boyd have done a wonderful job working with the class.

We have raised money for our treasury and are presently waiting in anticipation for the Christmas Dance. If the rest of my four years go by the as well as the first half of my freshman year did, I know I will have the best four years of my life.

FRESHMAN A LITTLE POND

Moving too Fast

Contemplating the conjugation of new verbs, Kelly Fitzpatrick and Adam Whitney get down to some serious studying in Spanish class.

The sophomore class this year is a high-spirited, enthusiastic, positive group of people who represent St. Bernard's well. Their personalities are always upbeat, and they are full of school spirit. While they certainly are preparing for the future, they live each day of the present to the fullest.

The sophomore class likes to be heard, and through their participation and energy, they are definitely heard loudly and clearly. They continue to make their mark every day, and because of their accomplishments, the Class of 1998 will always be remembered.

Too Little Time

Locker buddies... Rosa Rivera, and Charmain Brideau share a quick conversation at their lockers before they gather their belongings for their next class.

When the Class of 1997 looks back on its junior year, smiles will appear as people realize the accomplishments that were achieved and remember so many experiences shared. Junior year is a time when many challenges are faced head-on, decisions for the future are made, values are challenged, and memories are created.

The juniors have come together as a class and have formed new relationships while still cherishing the old ones. Receiving the class rings at the Junior Ring Ceremony was a highlight of the year, enabling us to establish our identity and loyalty to St. Bernard's. The Class of 1997 anxiously awaits its junior prom in the hopes of sharing a wonderful night of warmth and special memories. As spring nears, we look forward to becoming seniors and creating even more memories to long be treasured.

Fond memories

explaining his role at the Open House for eighth graders.

A Time to Travel

It all started for us few but anxious students on a sunny morning last April. Together with our chaperones, we began to make our journey to Paris, France.

Once at our destination, we collected our belongings and were introduced to Larry, our tour guide and George, our laid back bus driver, who could master any narrow, one-way street in Paris. Larry courageously led us to capture all the sights around the country: Notre Dame for Easter Mass, the mysterious island of Mount Saint Michel to observe the rapid rising of the tide, the Normandy beaches, home of D-Day, and the Louvre, where we saw many great pieces of art done by the Impressionists, and even the all-famous Mona Lisa. And to finish our fabulous adventure overseas, we ended our trip with a well-expected visit to the Eiffel Tower overlooking the "City of Lights."

Looking Forward to Change

Sharing fun times and soaking up the summer sun. Mary George and Elizabeth Hammond start a friendship during Freshman Orientation.

We are trapped! A large group of freshmen try to break free of their huge human knot.

Sitting this activity out, Rachel Bilotta gets herself psyched up for the next game.

Freshmen Orientation was definitely a day to remember. The incoming freshmen, from both small and large grade schools, had many fears ranging from getting lost to getting picked on by an upperclassman. Hopefully, all these fears were put aside with this relaxed day for meeting and greeting fellow Bernardians from the Class of 1999 to the Class of 1996.

When the Class of 1999 arrived at St.

Bernard's, they were welcomed by Mr. Bierden, the headmaster, Mr. O'Shea, the principal, and by many juniors and seniors. The freshmen were assigned to their homerooms, and then went through their schedule of abbreviated classes. Always, upperclassmen were there to help the new Bernardians to their classes if they couldn't find their way.

After the shortened school day, freshmen, faculty, and upperclassmen went down to the Bowl for some pizza and some fun. The Class of 1999 was split into groups led by the junior and senior volunteers and then played a variety of games.

The day was fun for all, and the freshmen realized that most of their fears of entering a new school were gone. St. Bernard's means a new beginning and four great years of fun and memories.

Looking like bossom buddies, Dan LaBarre and Jason Leger pay close attention to their next task to be conquered.

"Where, oh where has my little dog gone?" Christie Sparrow, Alexandra Ryan, and Jen Stewart are glad they are not part of the sweaty confusion of the human knot where other freshmen search for the "missing pooch."

A Spirited Change of Pace

Fun in the sun! Bridger Moran, Michelle Reynard, and Jessie Kistler dress appropriately for their "beach" holiday.

"You ain't nothing but a hound dog!"
Showing off his love for Elvis, Mr. Conry brings back the spirit of the good old days.

ook at us!" Proudly, Dave Catanese, Aaron trippy, and Brian Simms display their outgoing tures on hat day.

Spirit Week is the one week in the school year when each class' spirit shines through at its highest, and the school unites as a whole. The week was kicked off by the hallway decorating and culminated with a pep rally on Eighth

Grade Visitation Day. This year's Spirit
 Week was the best one yet.

The decorating of the class hall-ways showed off the individuality of each class. Each class had its own theme showing considerable diversity. The freshmen simulated a cemetery, the sophomores created a beach, the juniors displayed a jungle, and the seniors immortalized Star Wars.

Along with the decorating of the halls came other special days: Blue and Gold Day, when everyone showed off their school colors. Hat
 Day, when a multitude of crazy head gear could be seen roaming the halls, and Fifties and Sixties Day, where the craziest of outfits appeared. Throughout the entire week, points were awarded and then tallied to see which class had the most spirit. The juniors tied with the seniors in a shared victory that will not be soon forgotten.

Even though Spirit Week is over,
 we can look back on the good times that were had. After all, we do not need Spirit Week to know that Saint Bernard's has overwhelming school spirit.

ck it out, man. During their lunch period, Kate Ladeau and Kristie Hotaling exemplify the fifties sixties with their creative outfits

"Hey, man!" With her rasta-colored hat, Lynne Babineau wants everyone to know of her love for Bob Marley.

Time for Togetherness

"We've got the whole world in our hands." Senior Tim O'Brien, Heather Robinson, and Drew Koleros put together a model planet for the senior Star Wars hallway.

"Surfin' USA" Hoping all will come, Kate Halsted welcomes everyone to the beach party in the sophomore hallway.

"Always time for friends, man." Taking a break from the lunch rush, Toyota Smith and Sara Stose display their great sixties-inspired outfits.

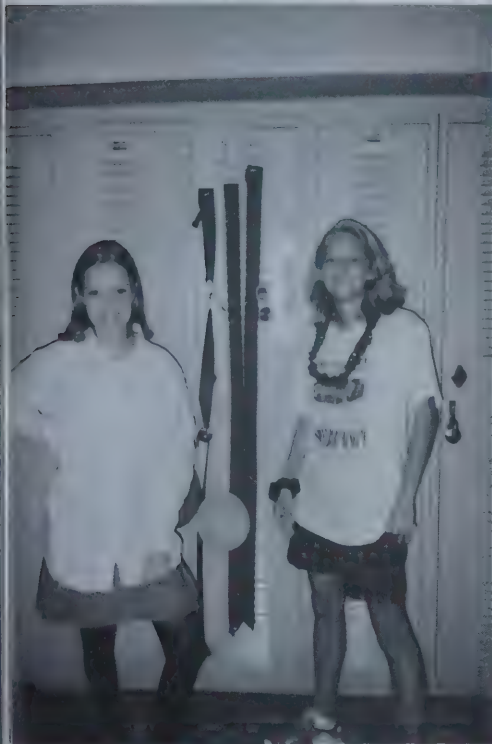

Our hats are tops! A trio of freshmen model Spirit Week-inspired headgear.

"One of these things is not like the others." Trying to blend in, Jessica Hoffman has no chance because Erin O'Connor, Leah Buckley, and Matt Jewett have such great hats.

Everyone is helping out. With her decorating experience, Mrs. Chevalier helps Karin Stewart and Ericka Kane add some color to the junior hallway.

Adding some rays in the sophomore hallway, Erin Sanborn and Rachel Brown try to see how many decorations they can put on a locker.

Yikes! Who is that frightening person between Aaron Garipey and Sara Devik?

She's on the run! Quickly, Meghann McRae helps Erin Hevenor hang up some metallic balloon "planets" in the senior hallway before she goes to cross-country practice.

A Time of Togetherness

Gazing into the flames Tanner Cole, Kim Holder, Mike Langlois, and Julia Pelletier enjoy the bonfire before the Homecoming dance.

Although Homecoming came late this year, the spirit of the school stayed alive in anticipation of the event. On November 23, 1995, STB played Clinton in the annual Thanksgiving game; however, this time it was two games all wrapped into one. The school was playing for Homecoming as well as Thanksgiving. Even though the game was an upsetting loss, it did not disturb the spirit of the event.

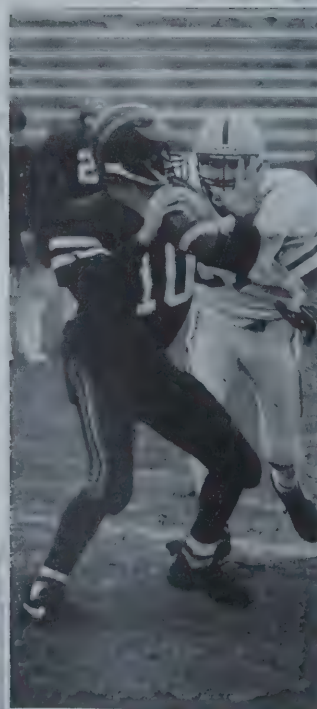

A new tradition was begun with a bonfire dance that celebrated the football game to come. Dancing, singing, and laughter continued through the night as people grew anxious for the big day. The Homecoming court was recognized at both the dance and the game.

Now, we must wait another year for Homecoming, and hope that next time we will win.

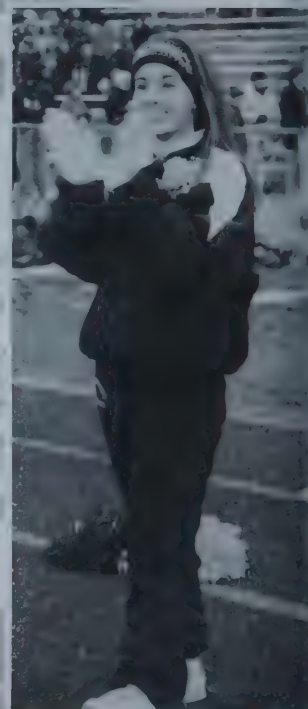

-Talya Sapienza

He's nothing but ashes now. With everyone watching, the cardboard Gael from Clinton was quickly thrown into the bonfire.

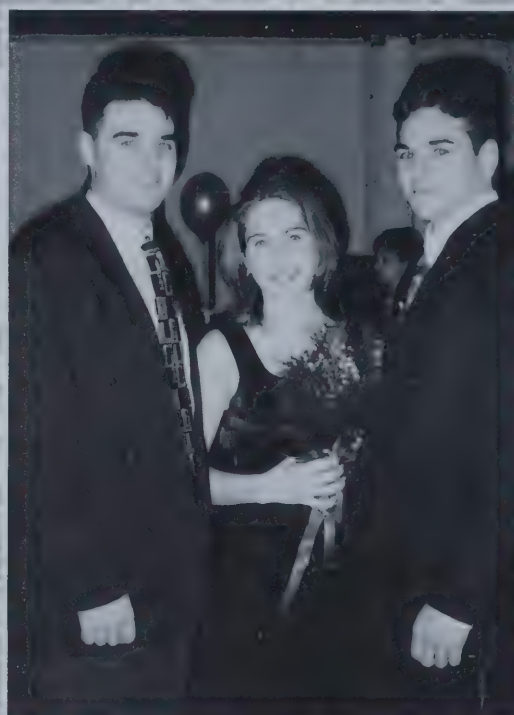

"Here I come!" A galloping Gael tries unsuccessfully to tackle our awesome quarterback, Bill Tapply.

"Let's go Saints!" Chilly but cheerful, Christen Barnicle claps after one of the Saints' great moves.

This is how we do it. Tearing up the dance floor, Pat Keough, Tim Moreau, and Kevin Guyer show how real dancing should be done.

King, Queen and King? Being the men that they are, Brad Gilbert and Josh Bilotta try to convince Jess Cote who is better.

Presenting the Class of 1997 Ryan Smith and Nicole Morand take their spot on the court.

It's Time to Hit the Road!

Wow, what a view! "Can't beat the scenery from the top of the Empire State Building on a sunny fall day," think Chad Richard, Alexandre Riendeau, David Koch, and Jeff Pelletier as they stop for some sight-seeing at one of New York City's most memorable tourist attractions.

Checking their itinerary Kristin McCullough and Bridget Moran make their plans for the busy day ahead.

Ready for their big adventure It seems that Chris Leger and Sarah Thomas don't even mind the long bus ride ahead of them.

Shhhhhh! 'Béat after a great day, Christen Barnicle catches some well-needed Zzzzzzz's.

Finally, a no school day! Armed with their "St. Bernard's I.D. cards," a group of St. B's students took to the streets of New York City for the day, a trip won by those who qualified by selling subscriptions during the annual magazine drive.

It all began with a very, very, long bus ride beginning at 6 a.m. All went well and we arrived in the Big Apple around 10 a.m. The first stops were Macy's, the Empire State Building, and other shops in these areas. Next came South Street Seaport and more shopping! Finally, the day ended with dinner at La Maganette Restaurant. It was a great day of shopping and sight-seeing, an enjoyable day for all.

-Leah Buckley

What a day! Sorry it's over, Chad Richard and Jeff Pelletier recount their adventures in the Big City.

A Moment to Cherish

"The moment is here at last," thinks Edward Ryan as he waits patiently to receive his ring from the Bishop.

"This is the word of the Lord." Representing the Class of 1997, Kevin Boyd proudly leads his classmates in prayer.

Congratulations! Charmain Brideau happily receives her ring from Bishop Reilly.

Assisting Bishop Reilly with the ceremony, Father Sullivan listens intently as the rings are blessed.

Three Musketeers! Waiting for their big night to begin, Kylene Hunt, Marianne Jordan, and Lisa Fontaine model outfits bought especially for the occasion.

On December 7, 1995, the Class of 1997 celebrated the annual Ring Ceremony. Class president, Nicole Morand, started the ceremony with a great speech welcoming her classmates, and their friends and families. This ceremony stood out from those of years past because we were the first class to have Bishop Reilly preside over the Mass. We also had Father Sullivan, our former headmaster, back as the master of ceremonies.

We received our rings, which represent unity, scholarship, fellowship, and above all, friendship, during the liturgy. For all the juniors who attended, it was a night well-worth celebrating because it was another memorable step in our four years here.

Tradition continues. Enjoying each others' company, Bevin Coakley, Tim Campbell, Jeff Thibodeau, Kevin Boyd, Jill DeCisero, and Amanda Rivard try to decide on what to order at the Singapore Restaurant.

Thanks! Happily accepting her ring, Julia Pelletier thanks Bishop Reilly for blessing it.

Friends ...

They are the people who help us discover the qualities in ourselves that we could never recognize on our own. They are the people we tell our deepest secrets to and share the best of times with. They are the people whose shoulders we cry on, and the people we laugh with about nothing for hours. They are there for us, day and night, through good times and bad. Throughout all of our four years of high school, we'll never forget the times we've shared, places we've been or lessons we've learned, all with our friends.

An Evening of Merriment

Catch me; I'm falling. Monique Plourde's date, Tyler Shute, holds onto her tightly.

Dancin' the night away Taking a breather from the fast dancing, Steve Turbide and Jacki Quinn enjoy a slower number.

After long anticipation, the Christmas Dance, postponed by a December Nor'easter, finally arrived on December 26, 1995. As the women, in their glamorous dresses, and the men, in the stylish suits, arrived at the seasonally decorated Activity Center, the merriment soon began.

The night started off with an elegant dinner and continued with festive music, which inspired everyone, freshmen and seniors alike, to dance the night away. Even though it took a while for the well-anticipated event to arrive, the Christmas Dance of 1995 will be one the members of the Classes of '96, '97, '98, and '99 will cherish in their memories forever..

"How about a date?" Ken Gagne pursues Tara Cooper during the musical The Pajama Game.

Working on plans for Homecoming '95, Nicole Morand, Kristin Glanton, and Brendan O'Shea listen intently during a morning meeting of the Student Council.

Changing of the Guards

During the previous years there has been much talk about a student council, but nothing ever really happened. In a year of change at St. Bernard's, much has happened with the institution of an active student council.

The first change was the structure of the St. Bernard's Student Council. This year we had a thirteen member student council consisting of the president and vice-president of each class, a class representative elected by each class, and a student council president elected by the senior class. Aside from the president, there are four other student council officers who were elected by the student council.

Secondly, this year we have had an active student council which started the year by attending the Massachusetts Student Council Association's seminar at Holy Cross College in Worcester. In October, the student council held a candy drive to hand out the donated candy to the patients of Leominster and Burbank Hospitals. More events were planned throughout the year.

Classical Times

The Classics Club, new at St. Bernard's this year, is open to any student studying Latin or Greek. A traditional Roman banquet, a Saturnalia party, and a catapult contest are just a few of the activities planned for throughout this year. We also plan to attend the Massachusetts Junior Classical League Convention where we will compete in Olympic events, costume contests, academic tests and much, much more.

A meeting of the minds Janet O'Brien, Marybeth Gordon, Pattie Caron, Elizabeth Hammond, Esther Lee, Leah Buckley, Rebecca Meehan, Ms Kullman, advisor, Patrick McManus, and Douglas Howgate

Are we excited yet? Students anxiously await the start of the first meeting.

So it begins Ms. Kullman prepares for the first meeting of the St. Bernard's Classics Club.

A Year of Service

There is never enough time to get all the work that needs to be completed in the guidance and main offices done. Therefore, many students throughout the school volunteer their time and effort by giving up their study halls to help Mrs. Quirk, Sister Mary Sullivan, Mrs. Buckley, and Sr. Joan Mulcahy in the Bishop Harrington Guidance Suite, and Mrs. Rouleau in the main office. Student aides' services entail filing documents, delivering attendance sheets, and carrying messages throughout the school. These students also help maintain a friendly atmosphere in the offices with their smiling faces and their willingness to do what has to be done.

"Ready for service." front row: Chris Jeffrey, Erin O'Connor, Cara Champa, Jason Jollimore, Kristie Hotaling, Shaye Desgroseilliers, Kris Stone second row: Nicole Morand, Talya Sapienza, Kristin French, Amanda Rivard, Kylene Hunt, Jill DeCisero third row: Michelle Stone, Kristi Gordon, Julia Pelletier, Ericka Kane, Bevin Coakley, Jill David back row: Megan Moreau, Monica McIntyre, Jenny Batallas, Rosa Rivera, Nicole Blake

"I've been caught!" Michelle Stone tries to finish her homework before class while waiting for an errand to run for the guidance office.

"Hello, this is St. Bernard's High School." With a smile on her face, Mrs. Rouleau answers the phone on a busy afternoon.

Literary Changes

"Let's have a looksee." Dr. Sousa and the editors of The Odyssey scrutinize their latest submissions.

Starting a new tradition are the editors of the Blue & Gold and The Odyssey: Emily LaGrassa, Julie Schonbeck, Scott Paul, Jessica Hoffman, and Rebecca Piro.

This year the staff of the Blue & Gold school newspaper took on a new endeavor: The Odyssey, our school's brand new, never-before-published literary magazine.

The magazine staff, comprised of members of all four classes, is led by Julie Schonbeck, editor-in-chief. Other managing editors include seniors Rebecca Piro, Sarah Lahti, and Scott Paul, and junior Emily LaGrassa. The faculty advisor is Dr. Sousa.

The magazine will include poetry, short stories, essays and even artwork. Students of all classes submitted their work, which was critiqued and copy edited by the magazine's staff so that only the very best work of the students of St. Bernard's will be published.

On top of putting out this publication, the staff also committed to publishing one year-end edition of the Blue & Gold. This edition will be dedicated to the senior class awards, class will, and class "Remember When's." Also included will be the year-in-review with articles about news, student life, and sports.

We look forward to The Odyssey being a great new tradition at St. Bernard's.

A Year of Honor

NHS Takes Manhattan

The National Honor Society Senior Trip to New York City was, to say the least, eventful. We arrived all dressed up (who wears jeans in New York?) early on a Thursday morning. Sixteen of us piled into a van, with luggage on our laps and Mr. Bierden driving. By the time we got to the city, no one could possibly move.

Day One. The experience started out well; we went ice skating at Rockefeller Center, the highlight of which was seeing Mrs. Grenier fall. We visited the Frick Art Museum, Trump Tower, and FAO Schwartz before dining at Planet Hollywood. We then put on our Sunday best and went to see Phantom of the Opera. So far, not too bad.

Day Two. We went to see The Today Show, had a quick breakfast, and (finally!) to the subway to Wall Street, where we saw the New York Stock Exchange. We had a quick snack at an exclusive, high-class McDonald's, complete with a baby grand Mc-piano, Mc-doormen, tasty Mc-dessert platters, and even Mc-champagne. Then we were off to Ellis Island, where we toured the museum and, quite literally, almost froze to death waiting for the ferry to return. Then the rain started.

Through the winds and cold rain we walked to the South Street Seaport. We shopped, ate, and had a generally good time. That was supposed to be the end of our trip, but we weren't done yet. We returned to the hotel by subway, got our luggage ready, and Mr. Bierden went to get the van out of the garage. Moments later, Eric Lynskey, Scott Paul, and Neil Gariepy were in the garage with him, removing the two flat tires. With Eric's amazing tire changing abilities and Karen Boisvert's navigational skills, Mr. Bierden successfully got the van to a garage where it was repaired. We finally left, three hours late.

A Year of Challenges

The leaders of the crusade to stop drinking and driving: Rebecca Nurmi, Christina Foster, and Kristi Gordon

Students Against Drunk Driving (S.A.D.D.) is an important club both in high school society and in society in general. Even though not many people got involved this year, the message of the organization is still loud and clear: "Don't drink and drive."

The function of the club is to educate today's students about the potentially fatal consequences of drinking and driving. Some of the ways in which students were involved were very dramatic. On one given day a list of student names was read, portraying a deadly accident. These students wore black for the day and were considered casualties. They were to speak to no one and no one was to speak to them, but their silent presence brought the message across. S.A.D.D. also displayed a chain of life in the cafeteria and sponsored a fashion show at Leominster High School. Awakening people to the danger that is pervasive in society is a challenge that S.A.D.D. has as its mission statement.

Time to Hit the Slopes

Every Thursday afternoon, those who are willing to brave the cold to have some fun head up to Mt. Massachusetts with the ski club. While some members learn how to turn and snowplow during their lessons, others race down the summit.

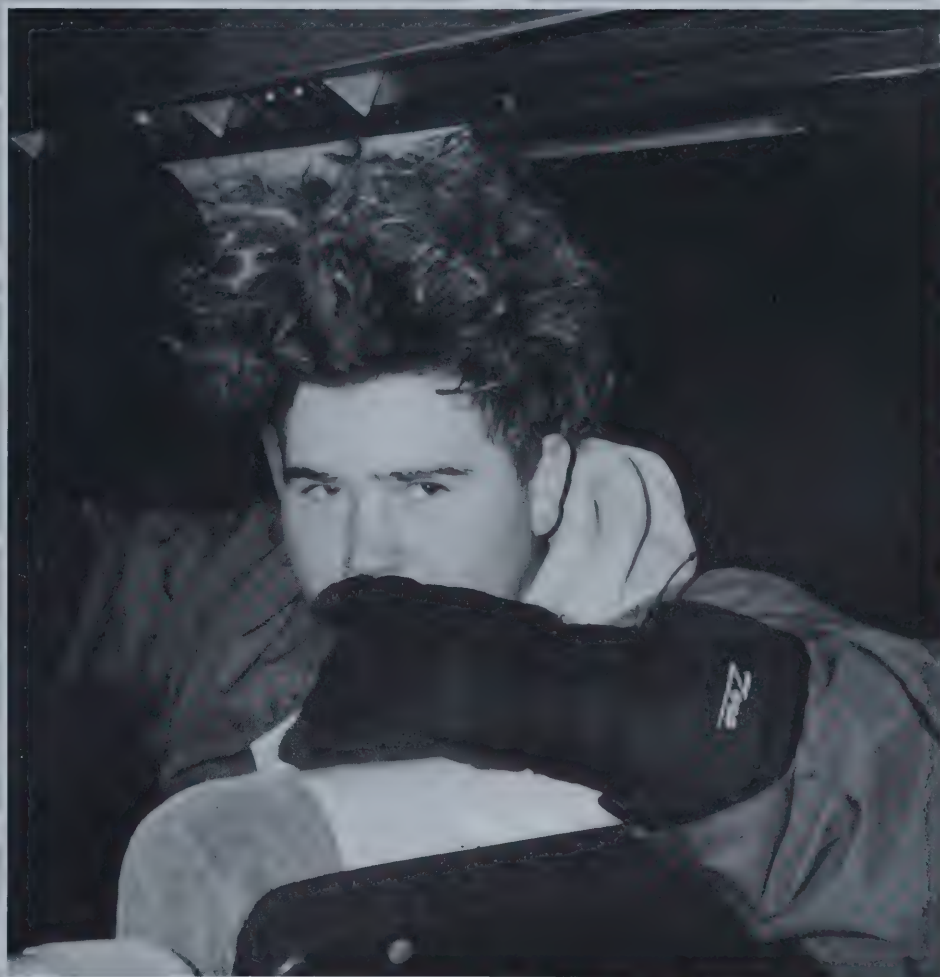

Freshmen and seniors alike bundle up and have a great time during these weekly outings for eight weeks during the ski season. The hours spent on the slopes are full of fun times with friends and new experiences.

This year skiers and snow boarders are grateful for all of the natural snow, which made for great skiing. The members of the club also owe a debt of gratitude to Mrs. Buckley for organizing the club, and to Mrs. Raymond, who chaperones every week.

So, whether you are snowplowing down the bunny hill, or flying over the moguls on Tenth Mountain, everyone is welcome in the St. Bernard's Ski Club.

-Emily LaGrassa

Phew, what a day on those moguls! Sporting a "Kramer-esque" hairdo, Chris Temple looks relieved to be on the bus back to St. Bernard's after a hair raising afternoon on the slopes.

Are we there yet? Mike McCarthy, Emily LaGrassa, Pete Olzsak, and Ken Gagne anxiously await their arrival at the mountain.

A Year of Creativity

Deep in the bowels of St. Bernard's High, there is a room where the creative souls of the earth gather, in other words, the art club. The art club is a spin-off of St. B's art classes, geared for both those who take an art class, and those who appreciate the arts. It is a place to meet with friends a few days a week after school and create; the choices are endless. A member can draw, paint, sculpt, or just hang around.

Home also of the famed "Creative Source," the art club is run by the art department's coordinator, Mrs. Remillard; senior, Mike Remillard; and yours truly, Tony. The art club is not for those who are weak at heart, for some of the meetings can be grueling. However, all-in-all, it's a great place to spend time constructively.

A Year Abroad

Just hanging around! Monique Plourde and Angelika enjoy some time together at home.

First of all, I'd like to say that I had a wonderful year here at St. Bernard's. It was a great experience for me to see "the American way of life." I'd like to say thank you to Mr. Bierden, Sister Joan, all my teachers (especially for the great patience they had with me in the beginning), my host family, the Plourdes, all my friends, and everybody else who helped me find my way through this school and this country. I'd also like to give a very special thanks to my parents in Germany, who supported me the whole time.

A Yearly Performance

Last spring's performance of the musical, The Pajama Game, was extraordinarily successful. The talented cast, headed by Nick Adams as Sid Sororkin and Karen Boisvert as Babe Williams, portrayed the suffering and the protests of the employees at the Sleepnite Pajama Factory, who were seeking fair treatment by management. It also explored the developing relationship between the two lead characters, Babe and Sid, who were on opposing sides in the controversy. The actors showed their professionalism through beautiful dances such as "Steam Heat" and wonderful music such as "Once a Year Day." The performance was also complemented by the colorful scenery and clever set.

The musical attracted receptive audiences to St. Bernard's auditorium for both its Friday night and Saturday night performances. The directing of Mr. David Ludt and the choreographing of Mrs. Kathy Ludt allowed the St. Bernard's actors, dancers, and singers to shine. The show proved to be a hit with students and parents alike.

-Robert Sisco

"Here we go again!" Roger Thebeau lectures the workers at the Sleepnite Pajama Factory.

At a loss for words, Nate Crooker tries to gather his thoughts.

Striking a pose Natalie Marabello responds to an appreciative audience during the performance.

"Let's get this party rolling!" Kris Stone rallies fellow employees at the picnic.

"Pucker up!" Karen Boisvert falls for Nick Adams as he sings of his affection.

An Era to Remember

There are few plays that can really overwhelm the audience to a visible emotional response. The Diary of Anne Frank did just that. Just about every person who sat in the audience on the nights of November 18th and 19th reacted to the play in their own way. Some cried, while others watched in silence.

The Diary of Anne Frank is definitely not a lighthearted play similar to those performed at St. Bernard's in the past. Although there are many funny and lighthearted moments, those times are overshadowed by the seriousness and intense suspense of what happens while eight people hide out from the wrath of the Nazi's occupation in WWII Holland. This play, based on the book, Anne Frank: Diary of a Young Girl, focuses on Anne, a thirteen-year-old Jewish girl, and how she grows up over the two years she is in hiding.

This play was not easy to perform. With only ten people in the cast, each person had many lines to memorize (especially Anne and Mr. Frank), and each person had many stage directions. It took about five weeks just to go through the play once and to figure out what everyone was doing. Each cast member tried to understand his or her character, and then talk and move as that character really would have, so that the play would be convincing. There were many scenes that demanded sheer happiness, anger, shock, fear, or complete desperation. Sometimes all these feelings were mixed into one scene, but the entire cast did a stand out job at perfecting each emotion, and every time they practiced or performed, the height of the emotion grew greater.

I've been in many plays, but this one was somehow different. The context of the play and the involvement of all the actors in their parts was memorable. Moreover, the cast and crew were small, so we really had fun and became friends, often with people whom we might have never had the chance to meet otherwise. I speak on behalf of the whole cast and crew when I say, "This is definitely an experience that I will never forget."

A Year of Triumph

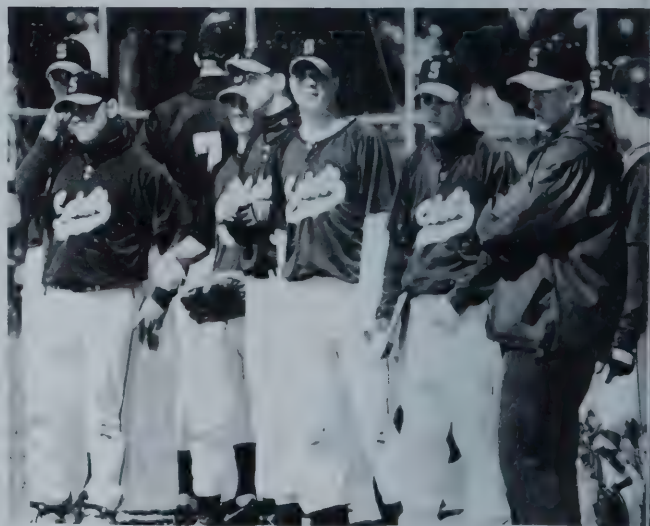

The men of St. Bernard's brought pride to the school in the spring of 1995. Varsity baseball had high hopes of another great season. Successfully achieving their goal, they made their mark in Central Massachusetts. Track and field, led by coach Dave Farnsworth, had an outstanding season due to new and returning track team members. Golf fought their way through the '95 spring season. Their long hours of practice proved beneficial in the end as they made district competition for the first time in Saint Bernard's history.

A Year of Conquest

St. Bernard's Lady Saints' spring teams proved they're up to challenge of competition in tennis, track and softball. Improving every year, the tennis team will be back in full spirits to compete with the best. The track team is lacing up their running shoes, preparing themselves for yet another tremendous season. In softball, the athletes will have to put on another excellent performance in order to outplay last year's district-playing team. A Year of Kicks!

Through hard work and determination, the St. Bernard's women's soccer team completed its best season ever. Under the leadership of captains Kristin Glanton, Vicki Melin, Jen Pekkinen and Simmon Dzubinski, this spirited team beat opponents such as St. Peter-Marian, Doherty, and Clinton, earning a record of 9-8-1. With this record, the Lady Saints qualified for Districts.

The season ended on a rainy day, losing to the high-seeded Lunenburg team in a hard-fought battle. This team proved that St. Bernard's is a school to be reckoned with and set the path for future soccer teams.

The 1995 men's soccer team had a year of triumph and victory. In the past couple of years, the men's soccer team has grown from no wins to a positive record, this year being no exception. With great determination, the men on this team passed, scored, and fought their way through the season. This soccer team will continue to grow. Good luck next year, guys.

We're going to score!" Barry Gagne prepares to pass the ball.

A Year of Ups and Downs

"It was the best of times, it was the worst of times..." That was the way that the 1995 football season went. The best was at the beginning of the season when we won all of our pre-season scrimmages against some of the toughest teams in Massachusetts. Then the worst began. We spent the mid-season in a slump, losing five games in a row; however, even though we lost, we never gave up. We always went into those games with the spirit and effort of being the Saints.

We played a tough schedule, possibly the toughest that the Saints have faced in many years, and should look at ourselves as accomplishing much. Even with a record of 3-7, we can say that we came off the field as winners. As the poem in our locker room states, "The only winner is the person who can look at themselves in the mirror when it is all over."

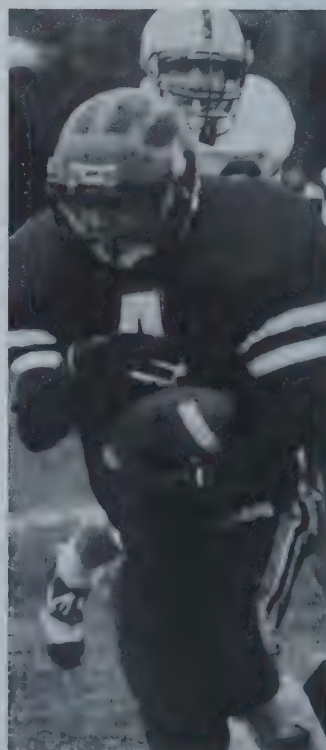

Without the guidance and leadership of Head Coach Hickey, and captains Tim Knittel (MVP), Josh Bilotta, Brian Evans, and Brendan Taylor, we couldn't have accomplished what we did.

A Year of Happy Trails

"This season we overcame many obstacles, ran bravely in the rain, snow, and extreme heat. We had fun and became one, even in defeat. Most times we won, giving more than 100%. Even with sore muscles, it was time well spent. Good luck next year. I'll miss you all!"

-Jaime Gleason

Cross-Country running involves a lot of strength and determination, not to mention plenty of energy. This year the St. Bernard's women's cross-country team showed these qualities throughout their successful season finishing the year with an outstanding record of 12-3. Everyone on the team contributed to this success.

Supported by dedicated friends and family, and led by an incredible and educated coach, we easily showed our competitors what St. Bernard's stood for. We turned into a terrific team full of promising athletes.

A Year of Team Work

Spirit, enthusiasm, and energy filled the stands of the Bernardian Bowl this season thanks to the continuous smiles of twelve committed women. This year's cheering squad consisting of eight seniors, two juniors, and two freshmen united together, and in turn, were able to unite the fans, students, and staff of St. Bernard's.

Home or away, winning or losing, this group of girls never lost their motivation and concentration, or their love for the sports, the players, and the school. Also there supporting the cheerleaders were the parents, showing their excitement with loud cheers and spirit-filled tailgates. All together, the community at St. Bernard's has really bonded together as one to support the players on the field and make their season a fun one.

"It seems like inch by inch we keep getting closer and closer. We had a great season! We'll be back next year and our goal is in reach."

-Amanda Rivard.

After making the districts last year for the first time since Coach Tracy Cringan herself played, the field hockey team hoped to have a successful repeat that previous season. Led by senior co-captains, Tara Cooper and Melissa Courtemanche, the team had yet another great season. From hard work and dedication, our record was 9-6-4, and the 1995 Lady Saints succeeded in fulfilling their goal of making Districts. The season ended with a disappointing loss in the first round, but high hopes are set for next year's team.

Fast-Breaking Action

The Saint Bernard's Varsity Basketball team, led by co-captains John Ginnity, Damon Keaveny and Chad LeBlanc, had a good season. Coached by Mark Pierce, the team won the Christmas Tournament in Clinton, and then fought a long, hard season for some close games.

The Bernies played their hearts out and displayed a great deal of talent. A Season of Determination Much determination went into the '95-'96 season for the St. Bernard's ladies' basketball team. Over the few months that we were together as a team, we learned many lessons. Most importantly, we learned the value of our team and ourselves.

Led by captains Kristin Glanton, Sarah Lahti, and Vicki Melin, the team stuck together through victory and defeat. Victory was something the team strove for, and defeat was something the team learned from.

All in all, the season provided a platform on which to build for future seasons, and secured friendships that will last a lifetime.

-Vicki Melin

So close! Stacie Bush almost blocks the shot of the opposing team's player.

You can't stop me! Lyndsey Angus rushes past two defenders to get the rebound.

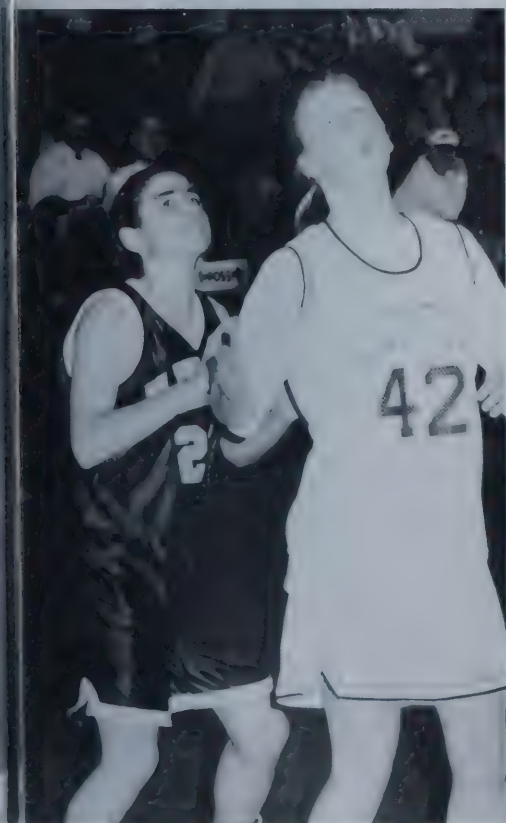

Just try to block this shot! (above) Sarah Lahti goes for the jump shot; she adds to the Saints' lead.

Nobody ever gets by me! (far left) Kristin Glanton jumps to block a pass and stop the other team from scoring.

In continual motion Alexandra Ryan shows her skill on the basketball court during a junior varsity game.

This one is mine! (far left) Kristen Normandin tries to grab the rebound before the player she's covering does.

It's mine; it's mine! Toyia Smith battles for position with an opposing team member.

The Recorders of Change

Many students do not realize that the book they receive at the end of the year not only consists of memories, but also of hard work. From September through March, the yearbook staff and editors toil over layouts, articles, and captions. Then, the deadline comes and the layout is handed in and a sigh of relief is taken-- only to be told that everything needs to be shifted over one space, and it's back to the drawing board! This painstaking process will be done repeatedly until every last detail is correct.

The yearbook staff is made up of dedicated students who give up their Tuesday nights to attend meetings, to type senior grids during their studies, and to work at home to make sure the yearbook is a success. Without these committed individuals the yearbook, known as the Bernardian, would not exist. So remember, while reading the articles and looking at the pictures, that many hours of hard work went into the making of the yearbook.

They look great! Leah Buckley is very pleased with the quality of her proofs while Bob Sisco checks his over "closely."

What a relief! Mike Langlois, academics editor, is ecstatic that his last deadline has been met.

What, not another problem? (above) Mrs. Boudreau takes this potentially stressful yearbook situation sitting down

A Fleeting Moment

The St. Bernard's ski race team performed wonderfully and improved dramatically in its second season. Led by junior Bill Tapply, sophomore Stefan Brutsch, senior Brian Hart, and coaches Rick Scarpignato and Bud Leonhardt, the team moved to new heights.

Every Friday while other athletes played in warm gyms and covered arenas, the racers braved the cold, and raced to win. With Tapply placing first or second in every race, the Saints quickly moved up in the standings and assured their place in the league for years to come.

-Leah Buckley

Who says I can't bash the gates? (top right) Stefan Brutsch prepares to run the course. Nobody told me it was icy! (center) Chris Mann tucks between the gates.

Don't forget to turn high. Freshmen Scott Berry and Doug Jordan receive advice from junior George Leonhardt.

What do you mean the timer isn't working again? Leah Buckley waits to start the race.

“Two kinds of gratitude:
The sudden kind we feel for what we take; the larger we feel for what we give.”

-E.A. Robinson

Our best to all of the Senior Class!
